HANDICAPPED

This is the Case With Many Emporium People.

Too many Emporium citizens are handicapped with a bad back. The unceasing pain causes constant misery, making work a burden and stooping or lifting an impossibility. The back aches at night, preventing refreshing rest and in the morning is stiff and lame. Plasters may give relief, but cannot reach the cause. To eliminate the pains and aches you must cure the kidneys.

Doan's Kidney Pills help sick kidneys. The following statement should convince every Emporium reader of their efficiency.

F. D. Sweener, Market St., St. Marys, Pa., says: "I was subject to severe pains in my back and sides and it was only with great difficulty that I could straighten. Headaches also bothered me and I was in bad shape. When Doan's Kidney Pills were recommended to me, I procured a supply and it did not take them long to drive away my trouble. I cannot praise this remedy too highly and I have often advised other kidney sufferers to give it a trial."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents, Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Throwing His Fortune Away.

Throwing away what one has is not always the only way to lose a fortune. Being unable to see an opportunity, or to grasp it when seeing it, is more often the cause of losing out in the world. A person who feels too sluggish to make the best of time can quickly improve by using Sexine Pills, the great tonic that is guaranteed for all forms of weakness in men and women. Price $1 a box; six boxes $5, with full guarantee. Address or call at Dodson's Drug Store, where they sell all the principal remedies and do not substitute.

WILL HELP FARMER

EFFECT OF RECIPROCITY AGREEMENT WITH CANADA.

Provides Better Market for His Productions and Cheapens Price of Many Things That He Has to Purchase.

The American farmer may be a little bewildered at this moment. He is being assured on one hand that the reciprocity agreement with Canada will ruin him. Other men, among them such old and stanch friends as Secretary Wilson, are assuring him that not only can it do him no harm but that it will be of service to him in that it will give him a better market for some of the things he produces and cheapen the price of some he has to buy. Fortunately, the farmer is in a position to consider the question dispassionately. He has been doing remarkably well for several years. He is not worrying where the money is to come from to pay the interest on his mortgage. He has paid it off and has money in bank.

It should be an easy matter to convince the average American wheat grower that the free admission of Canadian wheat canhot injure and may benefit him. The price of wheat for the world is fixed at Liverpool. The price would not be affected by the free admission of Canadian grain. There would simply be a more extensive interchange of wheat. American millers would buy more Canadian hard wheat for mixing purposes, and Canadian millers would buy more American soft wheat. Last year Canada took a million dollars' worth of wheat of the United States. But for the Canadian duty, which it is proposed to repeal, more would have been taken.

The reciprocal removal of duties would make a broader and steadier market for both countries. There would be no more attempts to run a wheat corner in Chicago. The most daring speculator would regard it as too desperate an undertaking when he had the Canadian supply to reckon with. While the price of wheat would be steadied the value of farm lands would not be affected.—Chicago Tribune.

The Tariff.

Whatever happens—extra session or no extra session of congress—this is going to be a tariff year in these United States of America.

If the pact with Canada fails at this session and an extra session is called to consider it, that will mean at least a protracted and spirited controversy. In a way, that instrument has increased interest in the whole tariff question. It has quickened the national pulse. Both Democrats and Republicans are seeing things a little more broadly and intimately than ever before. Here is reciprocity in a form that he who runs may read. The proposition is definite and easily understood. If we want a larger market right at our door, here is the chance to acquire it.

If the pact fails at this session, and the matter goes over until next winter, it will still be a lively subject of discussion in the press and on the stump meanwhile. Governor Foss of Massachusetts in particular should welcome it. He claimed his election to congress a year ago and his election to the governorship in November on the score of his advocacy of reciprocity with Canada; and next November Massachusetts holds another state election.

Moreover, the pact is certain to grow in interest abroad, not only in Great Britain, but on the continent, and when its full significance has been appraised there, what is said by the foreign press and by foreign statesmen will add to our own interest in the subject.

Future Will Decide.

There has been more or less comment, humorous and otherwise, regarding Guam, that little island far off in the Pacific which as a result of the war with Spain became a possession or the United States. But according to facts brought out in discussion in the house of representatives Guam may have important possibilities as a producer of potash, nitrates and other fertilizers essential to the farming industry of this country. Nobody thought much of Alaska when Mr. Seward bought it, and look at what has been produced there! Guam is not as big as Alaska, yet who knows but it will turn out relatively as valuable?

Indorse President's Policy.

President Taft's journey west was a triumphal procession, not merely for himself as president of the nation but for that principle with which he is now so closely identified and which he is putting into active form—reciprocity with Canada. The president was justifiably delighted to find that the people were ready for this reciprocal relation with Canada, and his brief trip strengthened reciprocity not only in the states which he visited, and as a reflection therefrom throughout the country, but in a very practical way by having its inflence upon the action of congress.

Spelling Bee Comes Again.

To promote good spelling among the students of Montclair academy it is planned to hold two old-fashioned spelling bees with cash prizes—one for the lower school and one for the upper.

Where He Gets It.

It never occurs to a young girl, but it's often the truth nevertheless, that the money the young man spends on her when they go out together was borrowed from his mother just before he left home.

MARKET FOR AMERICAN GOODS

Up to Manufacturers to Adapt Themselves to the Desires of Their Foreign Customers.

The reports of our consuls abroad with singular unanimity advise our exporters to pay particular attention to the adaptation of our methods of sale, of preparation of materials and of packing them to suit the habits and customs of the foreign merchants and meet the demands of their customers.

For years it has been found that either lack of knowledge of or inattention to the wishes of the foreign merchants in these respects has been a great barrier to the progress of our export trade; but our manufacturers, since our closer touch of late years with Mexico, Cuba and other Spanish-American countries and the freer intercourse with China, Japan and India, have improved very much in their methods.

The money our manufacturers will receive from Canada, Mexico, Central and South America, the countries of Europe, Asia and Africa, Australasia and the isles of the oceans will all make for large pay rolls in our own states and a greater prosperity in every farm house and city home in the land. Our export trade can be more than doubled in the next ten years, and the effect of that increase will be to the advantage and benefit of the people of every state.

A statement was made a few days ago that a British agency had placed an order in the United States for 5,000 automobiles. While that was a direct benefit to the manufacturers who received the order, it also contributed to machinists in New England, to coal miners in Ohio and Pennsylvania, to iron ore workers in Minnesota, to freight carriers on the lakes and upon the railways, to steel mills in Pennsylvania and Ohio, to workingmen in Indiana and Michigan, and to longshoremen on the docks of the Atlantic ports. When that order is filled it brings millions of dollars of foreign cash to be utilized in the business of this country.

Postal Savings Banks.

The first month's operations of the postal savings banks are very satisfactory to the government officials. Postmaster General Hitchcock announces that the total deposits amount approximately to $60,000, and that this average continued throughout the year will make an aggregate of $750,000. The amount thus far received exceeds the average per month for the best year of the British system, which has long been in effect. The postmaster general thinks the plan can be extended, and declares that if he had the requisite means at his disposal he would open 500 additional banks at once. The Republican party favored the establishment of the banks "for the convenience of the people and the encouragement of thrift," and the system seems to be getting in its work.

Farmers Will Be Gainers.

Here and there, now and then, an individual farmer will make a little less, because of reciprocity, but the farmers taken as a whole would be gainers as producers. They would get no less for any of their crops; they would get more for some. Now, how would they stand as consumers? The farmers are consumers of lumber and shingles. The reciprocity agreement would cheapen both of them. They have been complaining of the high cost of those articles for some years. Now is the time to bring down the price.

Democratic Discomfiture.

The way of the aspiring Democrat who wants a chance at the nomination for president is not easy these days. An Ohio organization of men calling themselves progressive Democrats has started in to oppose the selection of Governor Harmon as the presidential candidate. This backfire in his own state must be discomfiting to the Ohio executive. And the situation becomes still more complicated with William J. Bryan squinting quite strongly in the direction of Governor Wilson of New Jersey.

Proper Handling of Tariff.

President Taft has shown the way to handle the tariff question as a business proposition, practically taking it out of politics. It is so simple and so obvious that it is astonishing it was not adopted long ago. In putting the tariff board to work and urging the creation of a permanent tariff commission to take its place, Mr. Taft has formed and pursued a policy as important to the welfare of the country as any that a president has marked out in many years.

Parker Sized Up.

Where is the personal influence of Alton B. Parker in the New York senatorial contest? It looks as if he were paying a political debt to William F. Sheehan, his political manager in the presidential campaign of 1904, and his present law partner. The performance makes Bryan's estimate of Parker more likely than ever.—Springfield Republican.

Keeps Ahead of Tommy.

"It is wonderful what progress has been made in the way of machinery," remarked Mr. Figg. "I see that there has been a machine invented that can make a complete pair of shoes in 16 minutes. Why, that is even faster than Tommy can wear them out."

ANGORA GOATS VALUABLE AS PASTURE SCAVENGERS

One Animal to Acre Will Keep Briers, Weeds and Bushes Completely Subdued on Land That Is Inclined to Grow Up in Wood.

Angora Goat and Does.

My experience with the Angora goat for the past five years has proved that one goat to the acre will keep the briars, weeds and bushes completely subdued in land that is inclined to grow up in blackberry briars and hickory, oak, red bud, dogwood, sumac and similar growths, writes Rufus Lester of Wayne county W. Va., in the Orange Judd Farmer. At the same time, the land will yield as much pasture for horses, cattle, hogs or sheep as it would if the goats were not on it. All kinds of stock seem to do well in the same pasture with the goats.

For the goat to be of best service the underbrush should be cut out or fire should run through the woods, so as to kill the small timber. The large timber should be girdled so as to kill it, and the goats will then keep the sprouts down until the roots of the timber die out and blue grass will sod the land. This will require about three years.

The Angora goat is not afraid of dogs and can protect itself well against their attacks. They are fond of butting each other in play, but I never saw one attempt to fight other stock.

It requires some kind of fence to keep the goat in which he cannot stand on the top of or climb up. The best fence for Angora goats is the woven wire fence. This fence need not be over 40 or 42 inches high. The fence must be close to the ground, so they cannot crawl under. When their hair is long enough to protect them goats will often crawl through a barbed wire fence, if the wires are not very close or the posts close together with the wires well stretched. Goats will not jump over any fence, they want to climb up, and then they will jump down, or they will jump up on top of the fence and then down; but they never jump over a fence like a mule or steer.

FRUIT TREE PLANTING POINTS

Should be Placed in Ground While Dormant in Well Drained Soil With Hole Large Enough to Spread Roots.

(By PROF. JOHN W. LLOYD, Illinois Farmers' Institute.)

1. When to plant fruit trees: While they are dormant; while the ground is in a workable condition; late in the fall after growth has stopped, or early in the spring before it has begun.

2. Where? In well-drained soil.

3. How? Dig an ample hole; spread the roots out in their natural position and pack fine earth around them. It is handy to separate the clods from the fine soil in digging.

There is always a balance between the roots and branches of a tree, so if many roots have been cut off in digging the tree from the nursery, a corresponding amount of the top must come off. If trees are planted in the fall some precaution should be made against their being heaved out of the ground by alternate freezing and thawing. This can be done by spreading a thick layer of straw or manure around the tree.

There are four essential points in the care of fruit trees. They are: 1. Tillage. 2. Fertilization. 3. Pruning. 4. Protection from enemies.

Tillage is just as necessary in tree raising as in corn raising, and for the same reasons: To avoid the competition of other plants, to conserve moisture and to render plant food available.

Intelligent pruning is also very necessary to raising fruit. Each bud on a tree is capable of giving rise to a branch, and if every branch is allowed to grow the tree will become too dense. We must thin out the branches in the tree tops or we will have little fruit. It takes moisture to develop an apple and sunlight to color it: so the foliage must not be too thick. Pruning is also employed to make the tree assume the desired shape. It should also distribute the large branches equidistantly, as nearly as possible. It is always best to grow a good strong branch on the southwest side of the tree, where the hot suns and strong winds come from.

In pruning, we should cut the limb in such a way that it will heal quickly. To do this the limb should always be cut as close to the body as possible, and parallel with it. A saw should be used, and the wound must be coated over with white paint or something similar, to prevent weathering and infection from bacteria or fungus growths. Another important thing is to keep trimming off the ends of the limbs on young trees.

There are three kinds of enemies that trees must be protected from. The first of these includes rabbits, mice, etc. A tall piece of heavy paper tied around the base of the young tree, or a piece of wire screening will settle this matter. The second class of enemies contains the insects, of which the scale insects are the most dangerous. The scale insect can be controlled by spraying with a lime-sulphur wash and the chewing insects by spraying with paris green. The third class of enemies consists of fungus diseases. These can be controlled by spraying with Bordeaux mixture, which is composed as follows: Four pounds copper sulphate, four pounds lime, 50 pounds water.

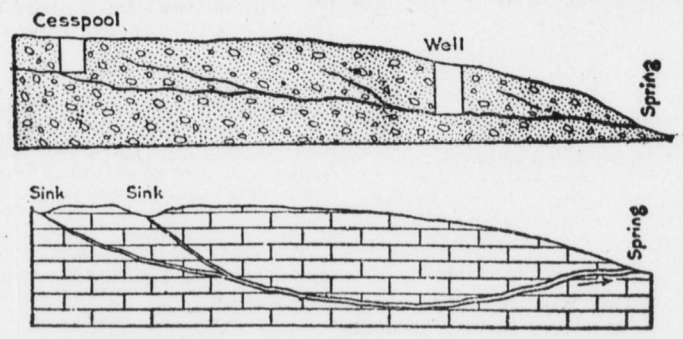
Best Lubricant for Machinery.

Where the pressure is heavy the lubricant should be thick in order to resist being squeezed out under the load. For light pressures oil should be used. Thus for a wagon heavy grease is best, while for a cream separator of high speed a thin oil is necessary in order that its viscosity will not add to the friction. Solid substances in a finely divided state, such as graphite, are often used effectively to reduce friction. This is regarded as a good practice in handling the bearings of a windmill, which can only be looked after occasionally.

Peaches on Grape Vines.

It is reported that near Greensburg, Ind., a large grape vine in some manner became inoculated with a seeding or shoot from a peach tree and last season grew a half dozen well-formed small peaches.

UNSUSPECTED WATER DANGERS



The diagrams show the possibility of wells and springs being polluted by material conducted through tubular water passages in clay soils or even through limestone rocks.

Consumption Spreads in Syria.

Consumptives in Syria are treated today much in the same way as the lepers have been for the last 2,000 years. Tuberculosis is a comparatively recent disease among the Arabs and Syrians, but so rapidly has it spread that the natives are in great fear of it. Consequently when a member of a family is known to have the disease, he is frequently cast out and compelled to die of exposure and want. A small hospital for consumptives has been opened at Beyrout under the direction of Dr. Mary P. Eddy.

The POOR MAN'S CHANCE

BY

JAMES OLIVER CURWOOD

COPYRIGHT BY PEARSON PUB. CO.
CANADIANS CUT TREES ABOUT 12 FEET FROM THE GROUND
BARRELS ARE MADE FROM TALL STUMPS
MILLIONS OF TONS OF STRAW IN PAPER IN THE CRUDE ARE BURNED EVERY YEAR

IF there was a gold mine in your back yard or on your farm you'd hustle to work it, wouldn't you? You wouldn't eat, or sleep, or drink until your spade had begun to toss up earth. You'd work like ten men, and you'd dream of the work nights. And why? Because you're after gold—the yellow metal. If it was in a cruder and less romantic form you wouldn't work so hard, and that is why—today—there is a "gold mine" not so very far off from every hustling, brainy, ambitious young man in the United States."

These were the words of John D. Rockefeller, recently spoken on the subject of "opportunities." And he finished with, "The times of our greatest gold and silver discoveries, of our Yukons and our Californias, are gone, but the times of our more valuable 'discoveries'—discoveries of gold in other forms—have just dawned. Fortunes are easier made today than yesterday."

Mr. Rockefeller, who has devoted a long life to successfully grasping "golden mines of opportunity," gave no specific directions as to just where a few mines might be found, but he hit the nail squarely on the head just the same. The modern fortune-hunter does not carry a six-shooter at his belt and a diploma for accuracy in its use notched in the butt of it. He dislikes bloodshed, loves good dinners, goes to theatres and, as frequently as not, owns an automobile. Perhaps he strikes a "mine" in the midst of a crowded street, or he hits upon it while listening to a Sunday sermon in church. It was there, while bowed in prayer, that one of the most valuable keys to wireless telegraphy came to its inventor.

Last year the country saved about forty million dollars in the utilization of what, up until a few years ago, was known as "waste," and of all the fields which Mr. Rockefeller might name there is probably none which offers greater opportunities at the present time to men of very small as well as large capital, than this. The utilization of wastes is not an entirely new idea. It has attracted a great deal of attention during the past six years, especially, and its "wonders" have been exploited many times—the wonders, for instance, of coal tar by-products, of ink made from the rusty hoops of old barrels, of silk ties made of the limbs of trees, and of the remarkable utilization of everything from hoof to tail in our slaughter-houses. It has been estimated that a hundred million dollars could be saved, or made, each year by utilization of wastes instead of forty million, and that such a department would within a few years be as valuable as the Department of Agriculture, which has worked a revolution in the farming methods of the nation. This department would be of value not only to the large manufacturers and producers, who are the sole "waste product" utilizers of today, but would open mines of profit to thousands of merchants, wholesale men, small dealers and manufacturers, and would open up, as well, new fields for either small or large capital. It would show wholesale dealers how the thousands of bushels of fruit which spoil on their hands each season could be made to pay the wages of their working forces; how the great dry goods merchant could add a good percentage to his profits by "utilizing" in various ways, and it would show where new by-product business could be started and carried on at a profit in every city. It is pointed out that practically the only "utilization of waste" business with which the mass of people are acquainted, and in which they take part, is that of old paper and old rags!

In the employ of the Canadian government, the writer spent a part of last year in a study of the situation between the north shore of Lake Superior and the Pacific coast. The history of the States has taught Canada that the conservation of the "surface wealth" of a country is a tremendously important matter, and the government is making great efforts to profit by our mistakes. In spite of these efforts, millions of dollars are being thrown away each year in western Canada—millions of dollars which American capital and American brains could save.

It may seem a little exaggerated when I say that a hundred fortunes could be made today in Canadian sawdust. What Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota were in the lumbering world three or four decades ago, immense areas of Canada are today. For hundreds of miles east and west of the Superior shore the sawmill is the life of almost every town settlement. Mountains of sawdust lay everywhere. Sawdust is a nuisance, is carted away at large expense, is a white elephant on the lumbermakers' hands. If a man should appear to any one of the lumber manufacturers tomorrow and say, "I will contract to take all of your sawdust for ten years," the owner would be delighted to give it to him for hauling it away. There are not only thousands, but millions of tons of it. The mills do not burn it in their furnaces, as many American manufacturers are now doing, because they have more wood trimmings than they can use.

How can this sawdust be used? Easily enough, and profitably enough, too. A method has now been found whereby sawdust is easily and cheaply moulded into briquettes as hard as wood itself, and capable of producing a heat as powerful as that of coal. By mixing sawdust with glue-water and soluble glass, and hydraulically pressing it, a beautiful artificial wood is made, which in France is called bois durci, and which possesses a beauty of appearance found only in ebony, rosewood and mahogany.

Today the "paper question" is one of national importance. It has been pointed out a hundred times that the newspaper, magazine and popular novel reader is responsible for the going of our forests at a rate which will leave us pretty nearly treeless a few years from now. And meanwhile, because of what we can class as nothing less than ignorance, the people of this country and Canada are coolly destroying an enormous paper supply each year. For straw, after a brief process, is paper. Last year I personally saw thousands of tons of straw burned by farmers on the Canadian prairies. Twenty million tons were burned between Winnipeg and the coast! The value of those stacks, in paper, would be tremendous, and the figure would be doubled by those which are burned in our own western states. Scattered evenly over the grain fields the burned straw would not be a total loss, as it would be of some assistance to the soil; but burned as it is, in huge stacks, or "winrows," it does more injury than good to the soil.

In the United States there are hundreds of ways in which money is made in the utilization of wastes—most of them thus far being in the hands of moneyed men, like millionaire manufacturers, packers, steel producers, and so on. The "poor man's opportunities" have not yet been taken advantage of. Today, for instance, there is scarcely a city of any size in the United States where a man with from two to five thousand dollars at his command could not set up a by-product factory in waste fruit that would pay him large dividends on his money. What a large wholesale fruit merchant has carted away from his back door as "waste" would pay the salaries of his employees if turned into vinegar, flavors and "oils," and each of these by-products would be up to the highest standard of the pure food regulations, for decay in fruit is a chemically harmless change.

In another way there are opportunities for small capital in the sheep-raising districts of the United States and Canada. Not many years ago gold "wash" was a waste; today it yields a treasure. It has been found now that when a sheep is washed the dirty water which has cleansed the wool is of considerable value, and that it will yield a "wool fat" fifteen per cent as great as the wool on the sheep. From this fat five valuable products are secured, used as the bases for ointments, cosmetics and fibre lubricants.

In only a very few cities of the world is garbage made of value today. What the "wastes" of the American housewife may be made to yield in cash has recently been demonstrated by Paul Bruet, a German, in London. Bruet says that he started on $1,200. He began burning garbage in large vertical cylinders, surrounded by steam jackets, and evaporated the seventy-five per cent of water in the garbage. The fatty substances were dissolved, and as a result of the process he produced a fertilizer which is worth fifteen dollars a ton. So successful were his first operations that he started a small company on a capital of $10,000, and last year this $10,000 investment made a profit of $16,000!

In many places throughout the United States, and especially in the Canadian northwest, there are splendid opportunities for the wide-awake American to make money in the establishment of a new kind of twine-making factories. Farmers are now using a hemp or jute twine for binding their grain, at the enormous cost of from $120 to $180 per ton. It is now found that an excellent twine can be made from ordinary marsh grass and from the common "wire grass" which grows abundantly over millions of acres of western country.

Along the Atlantic, the Pacific and the Gulf of Mexico millions of tons of seaweed are cast up by the waves. It is often four and five feet in depth, and in France, where some of it is now being used, it is found that it will gather best where large stones are placed within tide-mark on sandy shores. In this country there is as yet little thought of putting seaweed to use, and yet it is one of the richest and most productive of all "wastes." One ton will produce eight pounds of iodine, large quantities of chloride of potassium, four to ten gallons of volatile oil, three or four gallons of naptha, and 250 to 400 pounds of sulphate of ammonia. Only about 70 per cent of the total mass is actual waste, and the remaining 30 per cent in each ton is worth between $25 and $40. The highest value is reached when it is turned in gelose, or vegetable isinglass.

Science, the wizard of the century, touches with his fairy wand the black, viscid coal-tar from the gas retorts, and from the 140 pounds of gas-tar in a ton of coal science today makes aniline dyes numbering over 2,000 distinct shades. Of medicines, antiseptics, hypnotics and fever-allaying preparations it furnishes quinine, antipyrine, atropine, morphine, exalgine, somnal, salol, chloralamide, hypnol, and a host of others. It furnishes perfumes—heliotropine, clove, queen of the meadows, cinnamon, bitter almonds, vanillin, camphor, wintergreen and thymol. It has given to the world bellite and picrite, two powerful explosives. It supplies more than 20 flavoring extracts; is the housekeepers' ally, with benzine and naptha, the insecticides; supplies the farmer with ammonial fertilizers, and has given to the photographer his two developers, hydroquinone and likonogen. It yields paraffin, creosote and pitch; material for artificial paving; saccharin, a substance 300 times sweeter than sugar. It gives us lampblack, material for red inks, lubricating oils, varnish, rosin, almost our entire supply of ammonia, and other things whose names would fill a page.

Not many years ago, when a "beef" was killed 40 per cent of the animal was waste. Today nothing is lost "but its dying breath."

It is true, as Mr. Rockefeller says, that today "there is a 'gold mine' not so very far from every hustling, brainy, ambitious young man in the United States"—and many of these "mines" may be found in the utilizing of "wastes."

WHO'S WHO AND WHY

IMPRISONED FOR SMUGGLING

To defraud the government of the United States of its customs coming here from the old world has been the darling wish of many women ever since Americans have been able to indulge in the luxury of an ocean voyage. Miss Multimillionaire, secure in her social position, did not like to be held up on the dock and made to pay large sums for being caught trying to swindle the government. But when she is caught finally she chafes under her treatment, but society stands by her and that encourages others to follow her example.

To remove this prop from the fashionable woman the authorities have decided to jail those caught in defrauding Uncle Sam of his dues. This penalty, it is thought, will prevent reputable women from engaging in the business.

The first to suffer the imprisonment and the odium which attaches to it is Mrs. Roberta G. Hill, divorced wife of Major Hill of the English army. She pleaded guilty to smuggling in a sable coat and jewelry valued at $8,000, pleading in extenuation that she was ignorant of the law. Judge Martin in New York fined her $2,000 and sentenced her to serve three days in a cell in the Tombs. Mrs. Hill became hysterical when imprisonment was added to fine. She is a daughter of Morris Menges, a horseman of Brooklyn. Mrs. Hill is given to the romantic. At sixteen she married Halsey Corwin of Brooklyn, but she soon after divorced him.

Discovery after discovery of those attempting to smuggle valuables into the ports of our country, chiefly at New York, have resulted only in fines, and this has failed to stop the practice. Exposure and consequent disgrace proving ineffectual, the courts finally determined on imprisonment. This seemed the only way to make the rich and influential and society belles come to a realization of this kind of offending—that it was a real crime.

HUNGARIAN STATESMAN HERE

One of the most eminent of European statesmen, Count Albert Apponyi, member of the Hungarian parliament and ex-minister of public worship and education of Austria-Hungary, is now on a visit to this country in the interest of international peace. He has come to deliver a series of lectures on the difficulties of the peace problem in Europe and to urge this country to become the world's leader in the efforts to abolish war. This is not his first visit to the United States. He came here in 1904 to attend the peace conference held at St. Louis. He has been active in the cause of the world's peace for many years and has attended interparliamentary conferences on the subject at Brussels, Christiania, Paris and London.

Count Apponyi is a member of a Hungarian aristocracy which traces its descent in an unbroken line back to 1235. He was born in 1846, was educated in schools conducted by the Jesuits and has been in public life since 1872. He was a conservative when he first entered politics, but is now the leader of the nationalists, or the Kossuth party, in Hungary. Although an aristocrat by birth and heredity, he is noted for his democracy and years ago relinquished the seat which was his by right in the Hungarian house of peers in order to sit in the lower house.

The count is the owner of magnificent estates in Hungary and is wealthy. His wife is related to the royal family of England, her grandmother having been a sister of Queen Victoria's husband, the prince consort.

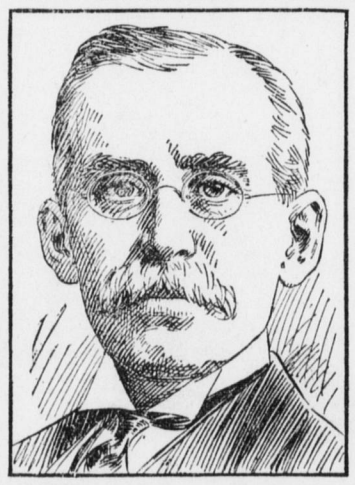
IMPORTANT COMMITTEE HEAD

One of the figures of the Sixty-second congress will be Representative Oscar W. Underwood of Alabama, selected by the Democratic caucus to head the all-important ways and means committee. Mr. Underwood will be the Democratic floor leader, succeeding in that position Representative Sereno E. Payne of New York, and will give his name to the new tariff bill which the Democrats propose to put through.

Mr. Underwood never held an office or was a candidate for such a position until 1894. Then he ran for congress, the entire issue being the tariff, and he had a bitter fight. Speaker Crisp came into the district to help him and when the votes were counted he had won by 1,000. Since that time he has never had an opponent for the nomination. He has been elected to congress eight times, three times without a Republican opponent. He has always been a close friend and confidential adviser of Champ Clark and is only forty-eight years old. He was born in Louisville, Ky. His grandfather was a colleague of Henry Clay in the senate. Young Underwood attended the University of Virginia, graduating in law in 1884. It was there that he began to get his Democratic ideas. He has been married twice, his first wife dying in 1900. In 1904 he remarried.

Mr. Underwood is a prominent member of the Birmingham Country club and spends all of his spare time in the summer playing golf on the slopes of Red mountain.

MOUNTS HIGH IN THE ARMY



Another step in his steadily upward career has been taken by Col. Enoch H. Crowder, whose enviable army record is one to stimulate emulation. Gen. George W. Davis, judge advocate general of the army, was retired on account of having reached the age limit, and to the vacancy thus created Colonel Crowder has succeeded in the ordinary course of promotion, as he was the senior colonel in the judge advocate division.

Colonel Crowder is a native of Missouri, where he was born April 11, 1859, the son of John Herbert and Mary (Weller) Crowder. He graduated from the Military academy in 1881, and in 1886 he received the degree of LL. B. from the University of Missouri. Colonel Crowder served in the Philippine islands in 1898-1901. During the war between Japan and Russia he became conspicuous as an observer of the field maneuvers, being with the Japanese army from April, 1904, until April, 1905. In Cuba, 1906-'07, he acted as financial advisor of the Cuban government, his services being greatly valued.

Warrior that he is, however, there is one conquest which the colonel has never made. No womanly heart has yet capitulated to his superior tactics, a willing prisoner; at least he is not married.

The Vagabond Actor.

Moliere raised the status of the actor to a hireling clown who must amuse his king. Sir Henry Irving was even knighted by Queen Victoria, who recognized his magnificent services to dramatic art. But in all the years when Sir Henry was breaking his neck to run back and forth between Victoria's royal residences and the cities where he was playing, to set up his scenes and act for the old queen's amusement and the entertainment of her guests, he was never once officially received by her at court. He had many private audiences, which were much the same for him as to have a chat with any other old lady; but, although he was the possessor of a royal title, a favorite with the royal family and the greatest actor of his age, he never was invited or "commanded," as it is called, to Buckingham palace. The status of vagabondia clung to his garments, and he was classed with crooked nobles and other undesirables.—Archie Bell in Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Courage and the Flea.

Courage is resistance to fear, mastery of fear, not absence of fear. Except a creature be part coward, it is not a compliment to say it is brave; it is merely a loose misapplication of the word. Consider the flea—incomparably the bravest of all the creatures of God if ignorance of fear were courage. Whether you are asleep or awake, he will attack you, caring nothing for the fact that in bulk and strength you are to him as are the massed armies of the earth to a sucking child. He lives both day and night and all days and nights in the very lap of peril and the immediate presence of death and yet is no more afraid than is the man who walks the streets of a city that was threatened by an earthquake ten centuries before. When we speak of Clive, Nelson and Putnam as men who "didn't know what fear was" we ought always to add the flea—and put him at the head of the procession.—Mark Twain.

The Original Paul Pry.

Thomas Hill, familiarly called Tommy Hill, was, says Dr. Brewer, the original Paul Pry. It was from him also that Theodore Hook drew his character of Gilbert Gurney. Planche in his "Recollections" says of Hill: "His specialty was the accurate information he could impart on all the petty details of the domestic economy of his friends, the contents of their wardrobes, their pantries, the number of pots of preserves in their store closets and of the table napkins in their linen presses, the dates of their births and marriages, the amounts of their tradesmen's bills and whether paid weekly or quarterly. He had been on the press and was connected with the Morning Chronicle. He used to drive Matthews crazy by ferreting out his whereabouts when he left London and popping the information in some paper."

Names In Electricity.

Electricity is the one branch of science that honors the great names in its fundamental terminology. Andre Marie Ampere was the French physicist who first measured the current and for whom the unit is named. The ohm bears the name of George S. Ohm, a German man of science who discovered the law on which the unit of electrical resistance is based. The volt is named for the Italian Volta, the greatest electrical authority of the eighteenth century, who was the first man to construct a rude electric battery. The farad, the unit of electrical capacity, is named in honor of the English physicist Faraday; the colomb, the unit of quantity, for the French physicist Coulomb, and the watt, the unit of power, for James Watt, the Scotch inventor who improved the steam engine.

Meeting for Men Only.

A meeting for men only will be held in the Parish House on next Sunday afternoon at eight o'clock. Familiar hymns will be sung. A Psalm and a lesson will be read, followed by the Prayers. , after which the Rector will deliver an address on theme. "The Temple of God and its care."

The THIRD DEGREE

A NARRATIVE OF METROPOLITAN LIFE

By CHARLES KLEIN AND ARTHUR HORNBLOW

ILLUSTRATIONS BY RAY WALTERS

COPYRIGHT, 1909, BY G.W. DILLINGHAM COMPANY.

Sank Sleepily Back Among the Soft Divan Pillows.

SYNOPSIS.

Howard Jeffries, banker's son, under the evil influence of Robert Underwood, a fellow-student at Yale, leads a life of dissipation, marries the daughter of a gambler who died in prison, and is disowned by his father. He tries to get work and fails. A former college chum makes a business proposition to Howard which requires $2,000 cash, and Howard is broke. Robert Underwood, who had been repulsed by Howard's wife, Annie, in his college days, and had once been engaged to Alicia, Howard's stepmother, has apartments at the Astruria, and is apparently in prosperous circumstances. Howard recalls a $250 loan to Underwood, that remains unpaid, and decides to ask him for the $2,000 he needs. Underwood, taking advantage of his intimacy with Mrs. Jeffries, Sr., becomes a sort of social highwayman. Discovering his true character she denies him the house. Alicia receives a note from Underwood, threatening suicide. She decides to go and see him. He is in desperate financial straits. Art dealers for whom he has been acting as commissioner, demand an accounting. He cannot make good. Howard Jeffries calls in an intoxicated condition. He asks Underwood for $2,000.

CHAPTER VI.—Continued.

He helped himself to another drink, his hand shaking so that he could hardly hold the decanter. He was fast approaching the state of complete intoxication. Underwood made no attempt to interfere. Why should he care if the young fool made a sot of himself? The sooner he drank himself insensible the quicker he would get rid of him.

"No, Howard," he said; "you'd never make a decent member of society."

"P'r'aps not," hiccoughed Howard.

"How does Annie take her social ostracism?" inquired Underwood.

"Like a brick. She's a thoroughbred, all right. She's all to the good."

"All the same, I'm sorry I ever introduced you to her," replied Underwood. "I never thought you'd make such a fool of yourself as to marry—"

Howard shook his head in a maudlin manner, as he replied:

"I don't know whether I made a fool of myself or not, but she's all right. She's got in her the makings of a great woman—very crude, but still the makings. The only thing I object to is, she insists on going back to work, just as if I'd permit such a thing. Do you know what I said on our wedding day? 'Mrs. Howard Jeffries, you are entering one of the oldest families in America. Nature has fitted you for social leadership. You'll be a petted, pampered member of that select few called the "400,"' and now, damn it all, how can I ask her to go back to work? But if you'll let me have that $2,000—"

By this time Howard was beginning to get drowsy. Lying back on the sofa, he proceeded to make himself comfortable.

"Two thousand dollars!" laughed Underwood. "Why, man, I'm in debt up to my eyes."

As far as his condition enabled him, Howard gave a start of surprise.

"Hard up!" he exclaimed. Pointing around the room, he said: "What's all this—a bluff?"

Underwood nodded.

"A bluff, that's it. Not a picture, not a vase, not a stick belongs to me. You'll have to go to your father."

"Never," said Howard despondently. The suggestion was evidently too much for him, because he stretched out his hand for his whisky glass. "Father's done with me," he said dolefully.

"He'll relent," suggested Underwood.

Howard shook his head drowsily. Touching his brow, he said:

"Too much brains, too much up here." Placing his hand on his heart, he went on: "Too little down here. Once he gets an idea, he never lets it go, he holds on. Obstinate. One idea—stick to it. Gee, but I've made a mess of things, haven't I?"

Underwood looked at him with contempt.

"You've made a mess of your life," he said bitterly, "yet you've had some measure of happiness. You, at least, married the woman you love. Drunken beast as you are, I envy you. The woman I wanted married some one else, damn her!"

Howard was so drowsy from the effects of the whisky that he was almost asleep. As he lay back on the sofa, he gurgled:

"Say, old man; I didn't come here to listen to hard-luck stories. I came to tell one."

In maudlin fashion he began to sing, "Oh, listen to my tale of woe," while Underwood sat glaring at him, wondering how he could put him out.

As he reached the last verse his head began to nod. The words came thickly from his lips and he sank sleepily back among the soft divan pillows.

Just at that moment the telephone bell rang. Underwood quickly picked up the receiver.

"Who's that?" he asked. As he heard the answer his face lit up and he replied eagerly: "Mrs. Jeffries—yes. I'll come down. No, tell her to come up."

Hanging up the receiver, he hastily went over to the divan and shook Howard.

"Howard, wake up! confound you! You've got to get out—there's somebody coming."

He shook him roughly, but his old classmate made no attempt to move.

"Quick, do you hear!" exclaimed Underwood impatiently. "Wake up—some one's coming."

Howard sleepily half opened his eyes. He had forgotten entirely where he was and believed he was on the train, for he answered:

"Sure, I'm sleepy. Say—porter, make up my bed."

His patience exhausted, Underwood was about to pull him from the sofa by force, when there was a ring at the front door.

Bending quickly over his companion, Underwook saw that he was fast asleep. There was no time to awaken him and get him out of the way, so, quickly, he took a big screen and arranged it around the divan so that Howard could not be seen. Then he hurried to the front door and opened it.

Alicia entered.

CHAPTER VII.

For a few moments Underwood was too much overcome by emotion to speak. Alicia brushed by in haughty silence, not deigning to look at him. All he heard was the soft rustle of her clinging silk gown as it swept along the floor. She was incensed with him, of course, but she had come. That was all he asked. She had come in time to save him. He would talk to her and explain everything and she would understand. She would help him in this crisis as she had in the past. Their long friendship, all these years of intimacy, could not end like this. There was still hope for him. The situation was not as desperate as he feared. He might yet avert the shameful end of the suicide. Advancing toward her, he said in a hoarse whisper:

"Oh, this is good of you, you've come—this is the answer to my letter."

Alicia ignored his extended hand and took a seat. Then, turning on him, she exclaimed indignantly:

"The answer should be a horsewhip. How dare you send me such a message?" Drawing from her bag the letter received from him that evening, she demanded:

"What do you expect to gain by this threat?"

"Don't be angry, Alicia."

Underwood spoke soothingly, trying to conciliate her. Well he knew the seductive power of his voice. Often he had used it and not in vain, but to-night it fell on cold, indifferent ears.

"Don't call me by that name," she snapped.

Underwood made no answer. He turned slightly paler and, folding his arms, just looked at her, in silence. There was an awkward pause.

At last she said:

"I hope you understand that everything's over between us. Our acquaintance is at an end."

"My feelings toward you can never change," replied Underwood earnestly. "I love you—I shall always love you."

Alicia gave a little shrug of her shoulders, expressive of utter indifference.

"Love!" she exclaimed mockingly. "You love no one but yourself."

Underwood advanced nearer to her and there was a tremor in his voice as he said:

"You have no right to say that. You remember what we once were. Whose fault is it that I am where I am today? When you broke our engagement and married old Jeffries to gratify your social ambition, you ruined my life. You didn't destroy my love—you couldn't kill that. You may forbid me everything—to see you—to speak to you—even to think of you, but I can never forget that you are the only woman I ever cared for. If you had married me, I might have been a different man. And now, just when I want you most, you deny me even your friendship. What have I done to deserve such treatment? Is it fair? Is it just?"

Alicia had listened with growing impatience. It was only with difficulty that she contained herself. Now she interrupted him hotly:

"I broke my engagement with you because I found that you were deceiving me—just as you deceived others."

"It's a lie!" broke in Underwood. "I may have trifled with others, but I never deceived you."

Alicia rose and, crossing the room, carelessly inspected one of the pictures on the wall, a study of the nude by Bouguereau.

"We need not go into that," she said haughtily. "That is all over now. I came to ask you what this letter—this threat—means. What do you expect to gain by taking your life unless I continue to be your friend? How can I be a friend to a man like you? You know what your friendship for a woman means. It means that you would drag her down to your own level and disgrace her as well as yourself. Thank God, my eyes are now opened to your true character. No self-respecting woman could afford to allow her name to be associated with yours. You are as incapable of disinterested friendship as you are of common honesty." Coldly she added: "I hope you quite understand that henceforth my house is closed to you. If we happen to meet in public, it must be as strangers."

Underwood did not speak. Words seemed to fail him. His face was set and white. A nervous twitching about the mouth showed the terrible mental strain which the man was under. In the excitement he had forgotten about Howard's presence on the divan behind the screen. A listener might have detected the heavy breathing of the sleeper, but even Alicia herself was too preoccupied to notice it. Underwood extended his arms pleadingly:

"Alicia—for the sake of auld lang syne!"

"Auld lang syne," she retorted. "I want to forget the past. The old memories are distasteful. My only object in coming here to-night was to make the situation plain to you and to ask you to promise me not to—carry out your threat to kill yourself. Why should you kill yourself? Only cowards do that. Because you are in trouble? That is the coward's way out. Leave New York. Go where you are not known. You are still young. Begin life over again, somewhere else." Advancing toward him, she went on: "If you will do this I will help you. I never want to see you again, but I'll try not to think of you unkindly. But you must promise me solemnly not to make any attempt against your life."

"I promise nothing," muttered Underwood doggedly.

"But you must," she insisted. "It would be a terrible crime, not only against yourself, but against others. You must give me your word."

Underwood shook his head.

"I promise nothing."

"But you must," persisted Alicia. "I won't stir from here until I have your promise."

He looked at her curiously.

"If my life has no interest for you, why should you care?" he asked.

There was a note of scorn in his voice which aroused his visitor's wrath. Crumpling up his letter in her hand, she confronted him angrily.

"Shall I tell you why I care?" she cried. "Because you accuse me in this letter of being the cause of your death—I, who have been your friend in spite of your dishonesty. Oh! it's despicable, contemptible! Above all, it's a lie—"

Underwood shrugged his shoulders. Cynically he replied:

"So it wasn't so much concern for me as for yourself that brought you here."

Alicia's eyes flashed as she answered:

"Yes, I wished to spare myself this indignity, the shame of being associated in any way with a suicide. I was afraid you meant what you said."

"Afraid," interrupted Underwood bitterly, "that some of the scandal might reach as far as the aristocratic Mrs. Howard Jeffries, Sr.!"

Her face flushed with anger, Alicia paced up and down the room. The man's taunts stung her to the quick. In a way, she felt that he was right. She ought to have guessed his character long ago and had nothing to do with him. He seemed desperate enough to do anything, yet she doubted if he had the courage to kill himself. She thought she would try more conciliatory methods, so, stopping short, she said more gently:

"You know my husband has suffered through the wretched marriage of his only son. You know how deeply we both feel this disgrace, and yet you would add—"

Underwood laughed mockingly.

"Why should I consider your husband's feelings?" he cried. "He didn't consider mine when he married you." Suddenly bending forward, every nerve tense, he continued hoarsely: "Alicia, I tell you I'm desperate. I'm hemmed in on all sides by creditors. You know what your friendship—your patronage means? If you drop me now, your friends will follow—they're a lot of sheep led by you—and when my creditors hear of me they'll be down on me like a flock of wolves. I'm not able to make a settlement. Prison stares me in the face."

Glancing around at the handsome furnishings, Alicia replied carelessly:

"I'm not responsible for your wrongdoing. I want to protect my friends. If they are a lot of sheep, as you say, that is precisely why I should warn them. They have implicit confidence in me. You have borrowed their money, cheated them at cards, stolen from them. Your acquaintance with me has given them the opportunity. But now I've found you out. I refuse any longer to sacrifice my friends, my self-respect, my sense of decency." Angrily she continued: "You thought you could bluff me. You've adopted this coward's way of forcing me to receive you against my will. Well, you've failed. I will not sanction your robbing my friends. I will not allow you to sell them any more of your high-priced rubbish, or permit you to cheat them at cards."

Underwood listened in silence. He stood motionless, watching her flushed face as she heaped reproaches on him. She was practically pronouncing his death sentence, yet he could not help thinking how pretty she looked. When she had finished he said nothing, but, going to his desk, he opened a small drawer and took out a revolver.

Alicia recoiled, frightened.

"What are you going to do?" she cried.

Underwood smiled bitterly.

"Oh, don't be afraid. I wouldn't do it while you are here. In spite of all you've said to me, I still think too much of you for that." Replacing the pistol in the drawer, he added: "Alicia, if you desert me now, you'll be sorry to the day of your death."

His visitor looked at him in silence. Then, contemptuously, she said:

Sameness.

"There is a certain sameness about natural scenery," said the man who looks bored.

"Yes. Wherever you find a spot of exceptional beauty somebody is sure to decorate it with sardine tins and biscuit boxes."—Washington Star.

Particularly the Ladies.

Not only pleasant and refreshing to the taste, but gently cleansing and sweetening to the system, Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna is particularly adapted to ladies and children, and beneficial in all cases in which a wholesome, strengthening and effective laxative should be used. It is perfectly safe at all times and dispels colds, headaches and the pains caused by indigestion and constipation so promptly and effectively that it is the one perfect family laxative which gives satisfaction to all and is recommended by millions of families who have used it and who have personal knowledge of its excellence.

Its wonderful popularity, however, has led unscrupulous dealers to offer imitations which act unsatisfactorily. Therefore, when buying, to get its beneficial effects, always note the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—plainly printed on the front of every package of the genuine Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna.

Resinol Ointment Is Used in Every Country of the World as the Best Remedy for Itching Piles.

I was terribly annoyed with Itching Piles for twenty-five years. I found such great relief with the first application of Resinol Ointment that in future I would not think of being without it. An occasional application is all that is necessary.

Reason Enough.

A negro near Xenia, O., had been arrested for chicken stealing. He had stolen so many that his crime had become grand larceny.

He was tried and convicted, and brought in for sentence.

"Have you any reason to offer why the judgment of the court should not be passed upon you?" he was asked.

"Well, jedge," he replied, "I cain't go to jail now, nohow. I'm buildin' a shack out yonder, an' I jus' cain't go till I git it done. You kin sholy see dat."—Philadelphia Sunday Evening Post.

Give a Woman a Chance.

Compulsory military service for men, urges a German female advocate of women's right, should be offset by compulsory domestic service for women. On the theory that life in barrack and drill in the manual of arms have benefitted German manhood, she asks, why will not life in the kitchen and exercise in the use of pots and pans similarly raise German womanhood?

If Germany ever organizes a standing army of cooks it may force all Europe to follow its lead. Culinary conscription is a severe measure, but when enforced in Germany other nations might be expected to adopt it. There would be more reason in doing so than in following Germany's lead in militarism. There is more real need of cooks the world over than of soldiers. It is possible to get along without fighting, but not without eating.

HONEST CONFESSION
A Doctor's Talk on Food.

There are no fairer set of men on earth than the doctors, and when they find they have been in error they are usually apt to make honest and manly admission of the fact.

A case in point is that of a practitioner, one of the good old school, who lives in Texas. His plain, unvarnished tale needs no dressing up:

"I had always had an intense prejudice, which I can now see was unwarrantable and unreasonable, against all muchly advertised foods. Hence, I never read a line of the many 'ads' of Grape-Nuts, nor tested the food till last winter.

"While in Corpus Christi for my health, and visiting my youngest son, who has four of the ruddiest, healthiest little boys I ever saw, I ate my first dish of Grape-Nuts food for supper with my little grandsons.

"I became exceedingly fond of it and have eaten a package of it every week since, and find it a delicious, refreshing and strengthening food, leaving no ill effects whatever, causing no eructations (with which I was formerly much troubled), no sense of fullness, nausea, nor distress of stomach in any way.

"There is no other food that agrees with me so well, or sits as lightly or pleasantly upon my stomach as this does.

"I am stronger and more active since I began the use of Grape-Nuts than I have been for 10 years, and am no longer troubled with nausea and indigestion." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Some Dress Accessories

LITTLE finishing touches make the finished toilet and mark the care that is beautiful. That bows of narrow velvet ribbon, or of folded satin, finish the center of larger bows of lace at the throat. Flower forms in shower effects, like that shown in the picture, made of baby velvet ribbon and satin ribbon, and neck bands of black velvet studded with tiny roses and forget-me-nots of narrow ribbon have proved fascinating additions to the chiffon blouses, now the vogue.

Very small flowers made of silk or ribbon or metal tissues, or of all of them combined were never so fully appreciated as they are right now. They adorn neckwear and bodices and millinery. Occasionally they appear on skirts. Nothing outvies them but the new beaded decorations. Small beads such as the Indians use are a feature of the season. Fabrics are cleverly woven to look as if beaded and one must examine at close range to be able to tell. The effects are very unusual.

It is not likely that the corsage bouquet will be any less a favorite for spring than it is now. The most life-like artificial flowers, scented like those they represent in nature, brighten up the plainest tailor-made, or add a final charm to the fanciest spring gowns.

The midsummer fashions are destined to be most midsummery. Slowly we approach that which is at once beautiful and comfortable. And now that Paris is turning out boldly a corsetless gown, and a bifurcated skirt which are taken seriously enough to be insistently reported, it looks as if a new order of things were coming.

We shall be forced to give much attention to the figure—the body which is more than raiment.

PRETTY WALKING COSTUME

Made Up in Chinese Blue Face Cloth. This Design Shows Up to Advantage.

Chinese blue face cloth is selected for use here; the skirt has a panel taken down front and continued round sides and back in a deep band; wide military braid heads this, while buttons are sewn at edge of panel.

The coat is cut and trimmed to correspond, and the sleeves are cut in with sides; black satin forms collar facing.

Hat of satin trimmed with a large pink rose and foliage.

Materials required: 6 yards cloth 46 inches wide, 2½ yards braid, ¼ yard satin, about a gross buttons, 5 yards silk or satin for lining coat.

Quite simple is the little coat shown here; it is made up in bottle green velveteen, is single-breasted, taken up nearly to neck, and has no collar; the edges of fronts are bound with silk braid. Straight cuffs are set to the bishop sleeves, which have only a slight fullness.

Hat of velveteen to match, trimmed with a wreath of roses.

Materials required: 5 yards velveteen 24 inches wide, 4 buttons, 1½ yards braid, 2 yards sateen for lining.

BLOUSES FOR THE SPRING

Waists of Foulard Silk Among the New Things Suggested for the Season.

Among the novelties and new things suggested for spring are waists of foulard silk. They are made up usually of soft spring colorings in the new and fashionable printed designs, and frequently have tiny yokes of white or delicately tinted laces or nets with wee undersleeves of the same filmy fabrics.

Lingerie blouses will, of course, have their devoted admirers and fill a considerable portion of our shirtwaist boxes. Marquisettes and voiles are often used in their making, as, of course, are the more familiar batistes and lawns.

Tailored blouses often open down the side, and hand embroidered makes them a little less severe in style. Crocheted buttons make delightful fastenings.

With us still is the wash-silk blouse in the well-remembered striped effects. These may be many colors, and the blouses are usually rather tailored in style.

For better wear there are still the veiled chiffon and soft-silk blouses, and our old friend, the Persian note, crops out here and there.

Novel Collar.

The string ties which women are wearing with their tailored shirt waists come in the loveliest of colors. The materials used are innumerable, but all, of course, have the silky finish.

A novel collar shows to good advantage a string tie of ciel blue corded silk. The high, straight, turn-down collar fastens in front. Wide, vertical eyelet slits appear around the collar at intervals of about two inches, and through these is run the tie, which is knotted in front in four-in-hand fashion.

Blue to Violet.

To change the color of blue prints to violet place them in a solution of household ammonia, one ounce to a pint of water. Do not wash the prints after soaking them in the ammonia solution. A stronger or weaker bath may be used as the prints seem to require. One can also get a better print from a thin negative by printing through a sheet of ground paper.

LIVE on plain foods, eat fruit, drink water freely and skip a meal now and.

Liquid Foods for Invalids.

There is a mistaken idea among many people that beef extracts are very nourishing; they are more stimulating than nourishing, but should always be included in the invalid's diet. Those who know, say that many people have been starved to death being fed on beef extract. Beef essence and tea may be made in the home at less expense and are of greater value as a food.

Beef tea contains albuminous matter, extractives, salts and a small amount of fat. The fiber which remains after these substances are removed contains much proteid matter, which is a valuable food. Although the meat is tasteless, with the addition of seasoning it may be used as a wholesome food.

Beef Essence.—Use a pound of round steak from the top of the round. Wipe and remove all fat, cut in small pieces. Place in a glass jar with a cover, put on a trivet in a kettle and surround with cold water. Allow the water to heat slowly, keeping it at a temperature of 130 degrees Fahrenheit. Let it stand two hours, then press the meat to obtain all the juices. Salt to taste.

Cracker Gruel.—Scald a cup of milk and add half a soda cracker rolled and sifted. Cook five minutes in a double boiler. Season with a quarter of a teaspoonful of salt.

Oatmeal Gruel.—This is a gruel that is cheap and very nutritious. Add a half cup of oatmeal and a teaspoonful of salt to three cupfuls of boiling water and cook three hours in a double boiler. Force through a strainer and dilute with milk or cream; reheat and strain a second time.

Barley Gruel.—Mix three teaspoonfuls of barley flour with cold water to form a thin paste. Add a cup of boiling water and boil 15 minutes; then add half a cup of milk, a fourth of a teaspoon of salt; reheat and strain.

Indian Gruel.—Mix two tablespoonfuls of corn meal, a tablespoon of flour and half a teaspoon of salt together; add cold water to make a thin paste. Add gradually to three cups of boiling water and cook gently one hour. Dilute with milk or cream. A richer gruel may be made by using milk instead of water and cooking three hours in a double boiler.

DISCOURAGEMENT is the biggest mortgage a person can carry. —John Bower.

It is easy enough to be pleasant
When life goes by like a song,
But the one worth while
Is the one with a smile
When everything goes dead wrong.

Discouragement.

There are women all over this broad land who are growing old and stooped with the burden of discouragement. Convictions are never so bad that they could not be worse, and we can always find those who are not as comfortable as we are and are also carrying the same load of discouragement.

We cannot expect the boys and girls to be self-reliant, to cultivate self-restraint and stick-to-itiveness and grit when they see the mother and father sit down and give up.

There are hard places in all lives, disappointments, reverses and discouragements are bound to come some time or other in all lives, so that it is necessary that in early youth the right value of things should be taught.

The boy or girl who learns to appreciate the processes of nature that are every day going on under the eye, to enjoy the beauty of a sunrise or a sunset, to see God in everything, has a power that no amount of book learning could ever give.

Far too many of both men and women have an idea that to be rich in the possession of money is the chief aim of life.

Money is truly a necessity and one that we cannot do without; but the riches of a well-stored mind cannot be compared to a full purse.

Discouragement and worry often are the result of tired, over-worked nerves. Get out into the open air, take a brisk walk, call on a less fortunate neighbor, forget self and unpleasant thoughts will fly away.

If we could remember that we live but a moment at a time and that often the bridges of discouragement and failure are but mirages that fade away as we approach, life could be much fuller and sweeter.

Nellie Maxwell.

Is an Expensive Affair.

The child welfare exhibit in New York, which will be open for a month, will give every possible information in regard to the home and the child. The cost of putting in the temporary structures in which the exhibits are shown was $15,000, and besides this the sum of $60,000 has been raised to carry on the exhibition. Many of the prominent men and women in New York are interested in the work, and have contributed liberally toward it. One of the largest contributors was Mrs. Russell Sage.

A Generous Gift

Professor Munyon has just issued a most beautiful, useful and complete almanac. It contains not only all the scientific information concerning the moon's phases, in all the latitudes, but has illustrated articles on how to read character by phrenology, palmistry and birth month. It also tells all about card reading, birth stones and their meaning, and gives the interpretation of dreams. It teaches beauty culture, manicuring, gives weights and measures and antidotes for poison. In fact, it is a Magazine Almanac, that not only gives valuable information, but will afford much amusement for every member of the family, especially for parties and evening entertainments. Farmers and people in the rural districts will find this Almanac almost invaluable.

It will be sent to anyone absolutely free on application to the Munyon Remedy Company, Philadelphia, Pa.

FEARED THE SCREECH OWL

Woman Was Not Superstitious, but She Cut Short Her Visit to the Country.

"I'm not a bit superstitious, not in the least bit, but—I don't ever want to hear another screech owl in the night," said a woman who remained in the country until the holidays. "Positively, I believe I should go mad if I ever heard that blood-curdling sound again.

"You know they say in the country that if a screech owl comes crying around the house it's a sure sign of death. Of course, I've no faith in that sort of nonsense, but all the same the coachman's mother died after the owl's first appearance.

"The owl came back and one of the employees died. It came back again and I decided that, after all, I didn't want to spend Christmas in the country and lighted back to town. The coachman said something about 'the old rule,' and I just naturally packed up my duds and bought a ticket for New York.

"Ugh-h-h! I shiver now whenever I think of that owl in the apple tree."

HEAD SOLID MASS OF HUMOR

"I think the Cuticura Remedies are the best remedies for eczema I have ever heard of. My mother had a child who had a rash on its head when it was real young. Doctor called it baby rash. He gave us medicine, but it did no good. In a few days the head was a solid mass; a running sore. It was awful, the child cried continually. We had to hold him and watch him to keep him from scratching the sore. His suffering was dreadful. At last we remembered Cuticura Remedies. We got a dollar bottle of Cuticura Resolvent, a box of Cuticura Ointment, and a bar of Cuticura Soap. We gave the Resolvent as directed, washed the head with the Cuticura Soap, and applied the Cuticura Ointment. We had not used half before the child's head was clear and free from eczema, and it has never come back again. His head was healthy and he had a beautiful head of hair. I think the Cuticura Ointment very good for the hair. It makes the hair grow and prevents falling hair." (Signed) Mrs. Francis Lund, Plain City, Utah, Sept. 19, 1910. Send to the Potter Drug & Chem. Remedies are Needed

Were we perfect, which we are not, medicines would not often be needed. But since our systems have become weakened, impaired and broken down through indiscretions which have gone on from the early ages, through countless generations, remedies are needed to aid Nature in correcting our inherited and otherwise acquired weaknesses. To reach the seat of stomach weakness and consequent digestive troubles, there is nothing so good as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, a glyceric compound, extracted from native medicinal roots—sold for over forty years with great satisfaction to all users. The Vacant Literary Throne.

There is, we must admit, today no monarch in any tongue upon the literary throne, no sovereign world name in poetry or prose, in whom, as has happened before now, not so many generations ago, in royal succession to Scott, Byron, Goethe, Hugo, Tolstoy, all the civilized world Teuton, Latin, Celt, Slav, oriental—is interested, for whose new works it looks or where it seeks the gospel of the day. Natoech-lish, to use an Irish word that became a favorite with Sir Walter Scott, it does not matter. Do not let us nurse the humor of the despondent editor who mournfully told his readers, "No new epic this month."

Nobody can tell how the wonders of language are performed nor how a book comes into the world. Genius is genius. The lamp that today some may think burns low will be replenished. New orbs will bring light. Literature may be trusted to take care of itself, for it is the transcript of the drama of life, with all its actors, moods and strange flashing fortunes. The curiosity that it meets is perpetual and insatiable, and the impulses that inspire it can never be extinguished.—John Morley.

Thrifty Harry Lauder.

There are many stories told of the wonderful thrift of Harry Lauder, the Scotch comedian. Once when Lauder was in New York he was in a wine buying party at the Astor. Everybody but the Scot bought wine. When it came his turn to buy he sighed.

"Well, boys," he said, "it's my turn to treat. Come along with me. I've got a fine bottle of old Scotch up in my room. I brought it over with me."

On another occasion he was with a drinking party and instead of liquor he took cigars, for which those who treated him paid 50 cents apiece. Harry put all but one in his pocket. He spent two hours smoking that one. After the drinking was over the little comedian went to the cigar counter and said to the man in charge, "I say, man, wud ye mind givin' me ten cent cigars for these fafty cent ones?" The exchange was made, and Harry went to his room with five times as many cigars as he had at the start.

Thought It Was Serious.

The burning of the famous Greyfriars church in Edinburgh occurred one Sunday morning, and the young people of a house which backed upon the churchyard were among the first, as they were preparing to start for church, to observe the flames. It was the housemaid's Sunday out, and old Kitty, the cook, was that day responsible for her duties. Hearing unwonted commotion and excited outcries upstairs, she came panting and hobbling up from her basement kitchen, crying anxiously at each stair:

"Oh, what is't? What is't?"

"Oh, Kitty, look here!" cried one of the girls from a window. "Greyfriars church is burning up."

Kitty dropped limply on a settee.

"Is that a', miss?" she grumbled between gasps. "What a fright ye geed me! I thicht ye said the parlor fire was out."—Youth's Companion.

Blending the Odors.

It has been proved that two odors which do not seem to have anything in common, that of putrefied cheese and that of pineapple, are so closely allied from the chemical standpoint that it takes but a few minutes to transform an intense stench into a sweet fragrance. This curious experiment is easily made and requires but a small amount of three chemicals—valerianic acid, sulphuric acid and amylic alcohol. Care must be taken not to spill over the fingers or dress any drop of the first two named liquids. Sulphuric acid is exceedingly caustic and the stench of valerianic acid, besides being unendurable, is very difficult to get rid of.—London Family Herald.

The Caddie's Advice.

A famous woman golfer was talking about the St. Andrews links.

"And as wonderful as the links," she said, "are the caddies. The Scotch caddie is the quaintest of mortals. For instance: 'I had skied a lot of balls one morning, much to my caddie's disgust. Finally he teed a ball for me and then, handing me my driver, remarked:

"'Noo, leddy, let's see a guid shot, and nae mair o' yer glory hallelujahs.'"

The Outdoor Nation.

No nation loves nature so much as the German. The Italian travels to get somewhere, the German to travel. The country walk for its own sake is a German discovery. The Englishman's ideal is a park, the German's a wood, and the Frenchman loves his boulevard.—Hamburger Zeitung.

She Admitted It.

A Mrs. Malaprop said to Clara Novello, the noted English prima donna, "You will admit that there is a great deal of evil life in the theater."

"True, indeed," replied Clara, "but on which side of the curtain?"

An Economist.

"You should ride a horse."

"Can't afford it," said the apprehensive person.

"But it will give you an appetite."

"Perhaps. But it will do the same for the horse."—Washington Star.

A Big Gun.

"Professor Smart is a man of large mental caliber, is he not?"

"He certainly is a big bore."—University of Minnesota Minnehaha.

That is the bitterest of all, to wear the yoke of your own wrongdoing.—Eliot.

A Cartographic Curiosity.

Catherine de' Medici once entertained the ambition of acquiring both North and South America as appendages to her crown, and with that object in view she dispatched a couple of her representatives to the scene of operations. The northern section of the enterprise was committed to the charge of the queen's favorite, Troilus de Mesgonez, who was adorned with the title of viceroy of France and sailed from Havre with a large fleet, only to be wrecked in the Atlantic. Another favorite, Strozzi, was commissioned to capture South America, but he was no more fortunate than Mesgonez, for he was killed at the Azores. These happenings, however, took a long time to reach the ears of Queen Catherine, and in the meantime she nursed her dreams and prepared a map on which "the new world of the north" and "the new world of the south" figured as colonies of France. This cartographic curiosity is among the map treasures of the National library in Paris.

Sweetness That Never Palls.

During a sleepless night the Vizier Mujjeduddin Kumija dispatched his slave, Bedruddin Ejas, to bring him sweets. The slave procured a copper kettle heaped with many kinds of fruits and sweets, and Mujjeduddin began to eat.

"You relish them, my master?" asked the slave.

The vizier shrugged his shoulders. "These fruits are sweet—for the moment," he said, "but show me a fruit the sweetness of which will endure even unto the judgment day."

"Such fruits there are, my master," cried the slave and hastened toward the Mesched Husa, where he awoke the starving orphans in the house of Allwin and led them forth into the room of his master. Overjoyed, the famished children devoured the fruits.

"Look, oh, my master," said the slave. "Here you see fruits the sweetness of which endures unto the judgment day."

Two Little Bills.

Robert was in the habit of expecting reward for every little service. At the end of the week he made out a "bill" to his mother and carefully laid it where her eyes would fall upon it. The items were as follows:

"Mother Owes to Robert.

"Five cents for running errands.

"Five cents for being good."

That evening there appeared beside Robert's plate a paper upon which was written:

"Robert owes mother, for years of happiness, nothing; for nursing him through long illnesses, nothing; for doing good to him, nothing."

Thoroughly ashamed of himself, Robert ran to mother, threw his arms around her and sobbed:

"Mother, I will do everything I can for you after this, and I'll never ask you to give me anything but just love."—Omaha World-Herald.

Easy to Please.

"So," said his girl's papa furiously, "you think you could make my little girl Arethusa happy?"

The young man considered his prospective pa-in-law, who had gout and a face like a fire engine and an eighty horsepower temper.

"She's been happy with you, sir, hasn't she?" the young man asked.

"I think so, my boy—I think so," replied his girl's papa. "I certainly think so. I think so certainly. I'm certain I think so."

"Well," chimed in the young man sweetly, "if she's been happy with you I certainly think I can make her happy. I think so. I think so certainly. I'm certain I think so."

Sleepwalking.

Somnambulism has been a mystery and a matter of discussion to the medical profession since the days of the ancients. They knew as well as we all now know that there is such a thing as somnambulism, or walking in the sleep. They attempted to explain it just as modern medical science has been endeavoring to explain it ever since. But as it was then so it is now. There are so many explanations that even the physician is puzzled to decide which to accept.

A Freak.

The elevator was waiting for passengers on the ground floor of the skyscraper when an excited woman fluttered over to the man running it.

"Does this car go up?" she inquired, breathless.

"No, madam," said the elevator man, unperturbed, "this is a crosstown car."—New York Times.

The One Place.

"That Mrs. Gossip seems to be at home wherever she may be."

"Well, I saw her in a place yesterday where she seemed decidedly restless and uneasy."

"You don't say? Where was that?"

"At home."—Catholic Standard and Times.

Awkwardly Expressed.

Gushing Lady—I hear you've been away for your health, professor. Musical Lion—Yes. I've been at Marienbad taking the baths. Gushing Lady—Really! That must have been a change for you!—London Opinion.

The inevitable kid and his question: "Papa, who furnishes the meat for the train, the cow catcher or the train butcher?"—Santa Fe Employees' Magazine.

"Was the play bad?"

"Well, I should say. Why, even the lights went out at the close of the second act."

EVEN JULES VERNE A PIKER

"Around the World in Eighty Days" Is Merely a Trip for an Invalid Now.

When I was a boy "Around the World in Eighty Days" was still a brilliant piece of imaginative fiction. Now that is almost an invalid's pace. It will not be very long before a man will be able to go around the world if he wishes to do so ten times in a year.

Briefly, the ties that bind men to place are being severed; we are in the beginning of a new phase in human experience.

Now, the really wonderful thing in this development of cheap, abundant, swift locomotion we have seen in the last 70 years, the development of which Mauretanias, aeroplanes, mile-a-minute expresses, omnibus tubes and motor cars are just the bright remarkable points, is this—that it dissolves almost all the reason and necessity why men should go on living permanently in any one place or rigidly disciplined to one set of conditions.

We are off the chain of locality for good. It was once necessary for a man to live in immediate contact with his occupation, because the only way for him to reach it was to have it at his door. Now he may live 20 or 30 miles away from his occupation, and it often pays him to spend the small amount of time and money needed to move—it may be half way round the world—to healthier conditions or more profitable employment.—H. S. Wells in New York World.

SYMPATHY OF KING EDWARD

Story of His Visit to a Sick Officer Who Wanted to Hear Monarch's Voice Once More.

Lord Burnham, speaking at a meeting to consider the question of a memorial to King Edward in Windsor, told the following story:

Not long before the King's death there lay in King Edward's hospital for officers, an officer who it was thought could not survive a serious operation. The king was coming to the hospital to pay one of his quiet visits and the patient, who heard that he was expected and was almost too weak to speak, said it would be a great happiness to him if he could hear his voice. He asked Sister Agnes, the manager, if it would be possible for her to talk to King Edward outside the open door.

Sister Agnes said she would try to do what he wished, and having in due course led the king there she told him what her purpose had been. In a moment King Edward went through the door to the bedside of the sick man, held his hand for a long time and spoke to him words of sympathy and counsel. When he had finally said good-bye he walked slowly to the window and looked out upon—well, he looked out upon nothing, for tears were rolling down his cheeks. He then silently left the room.

A Bride In the Suburbs.

They were very young and very happy and very foolish, and very newly wed. And they kept a kitchen garden.

"Angelina, darling," said the youthful husband, "as I was passing through the garden I saw some asparagus ready for cooking. Perhaps you'd like to go and gather the first fruit of the season yourself?"

She would love to, but she wasn't expert in horticulture, and she didn't want to "let on." If she went alone, she might commit some egregious blunder.

"I tell you what, Edwin," exclaimed the girl wife enthusiastically, "we'll go out together. You shall pluck it, and I will hold the ladder!"—Suburban Life.

The Man and the Likeness.

The obstinate refusal of the everyday man to sit for his picture is almost humorous in its dogged sincerity. And right here, it might not be out of place to state that the brusque, good-natured modesty of man on these lines is a thousand times more sincere and heartfelt than the very evident demureness of the more comely sex. But think a moment, men. The portrait may not mean much now, but in years to come, after the lines and shadows have deepened, perhaps it will make your heart young to look upon a faithful likeness of yourself when you were a debonair, dashing young sapling. And, no doubt, even at present, there are a score of dear ones who would give much to possess your picture.

Criterion of Character.

The truest criterion of a man's character and conduct is invariably to be found in the opinion of his own family circle, who, having daily and hourly opportunities of forming a judgment of him, will not fail in doing so. It is a far higher testimony in his favor for him to secure the esteem and love of a few individuals within the privacy of his own home than the good opinion of hundreds in his immediate neighborhood, or that of ten times the number residing at a distance.

Evening It Up With Edna.

Nat Goodwin was observed intently watching a billboard in Broadway the other day. He watched for so long a time that a friend tapped him on the shoulder and asked:

"I have watched that same billboard and I fail to see anything on it that should excite your profound interest."

"Oh, you don't? Well, look again."

And as he spoke his index finger indicated an advertisement which in large letters read, "Goodrich Tires."

Diana of Philadelphia.

At the mint in Philadelphia are a number of coins far more precious than any which find their way into circulation. They are a collection of curios, and many of them date from times of great antiquity. Perhaps the most interesting among them is a handsome coin bearing on its face the profile of a woman which has a striking resemblance to the goddess of Liberty of our own currency. Underneath is the single word "Demos," which is the Greek for people. On the reverse of the coin is a beautiful figure of the goddess Diana arching her bow, and the inscription translated into English reads, "Diana, Friend of the Philadelphians."

The coin was minted more than 2,000 years ago at the city of Philadelphia, in Asia Minor, where there grew up in later years one of the seven churches of which St. John writes. The prize was discovered some years ago in Europe by a citizen of our own Philadelphia, himself an authority on coins. By him it was appropriately presented to the mint in Philadelphia.—New York Press.

Carlyle's Sneer at Gladstone

J. E. Boehm, the sculptor, once met Gladstone at a country house and was immensely impressed by the extent and diversity of the statesman's knowledge as revealed in his conversation. Boehm was still full of the subject when the morning arrived for Carlyle's sitting for a bust, and to the philosopher the sculptor poured forth his admiration for Gladstone's intimate acquaintance with subjects so far apart as gardening and Greek. Carlyle listened for a time in scornful silence; then he said, "And what did he say about your work?" "Oh, nothing," said Boehm. "He doesn't know anything about sculpture." "Of course," growled Carlyle, "of course, and he showed his knowledge about things that you didn't understand. No doubt if you asked Blackie he'd say that Gladstone knew nothing about Greek, and the gardener would tell you that he knew nothing whatever of gardening."

How Sheridan Paid a Debt

No one knew better the power possessed by a really polished compliment than Sheridan, and on innumerable occasions during that rather stormy theatrical management of his did he extricate himself from a difficulty by means of one. A good instance is the following: An English nobleman who had married a beautiful actress once applied with much dignity in the greenroom to Mr. Sheridan for the arrears of her salary and vowed that he would not stir till they were paid.

"My dear lord," said the impecunious manager, "this is too bad. You have taken from us the brightest jewel in the world, and you now quarrel with us for the little dust she has left behind her."

The nobleman immediately burst out laughing, and the debt was canceled.—London Standard.

Graveyard Marriages.

A strange custom prevails among a certain tribe in the Caucasus. When a single young man dies some one calls upon a bereaved parent who has carried to the grave a marriageable daughter in the course of a year and says: "Your son is sure to want a wife. I'll give you my daughter, and you shall deliver to me the marriage portion in return." A friendly offer of this description is never rejected, and the two parties soon come to terms as to the amount of the dowry, which varies according to the advantages possessed by the girl in her lifetime. Cases have been known where the young man's father has given as much as thirty cows to secure a dead wife for his dead son.

Lightning Rods.

There were no lightning rods in ancient times. The first one that the world ever saw was set up by our own illustrious countryman Benjamin Franklin shortly after the year 1752. He had just had his celebrated experiment with the kite, in which he demonstrated the identity of lightning with electricity, and was therefore prepared for the construction of the rods for which the world had waited so long. It is not generally known that Franklin was as distinguished in science as he was in statesmanship and diplomacy.—Exchange.

As It Really Was.

On the morning after his first appearance on the stage the confident but untalented youth met a friend who had witnessed his first performance. "What do you think of my acting?" asked the would be Hamlet.

"That wasn't acting," replied the friend. "That was misbehavior."

Men's Clothes.

RASPING AMERICAN VOICE

Medical Writer Says It Is Worse Than All Other City Noises In Its Effect on Nerves.

The American voice is not what it ought to be, according to the Interstate Medical Journal. Here is what the writer says on the subject:

"We are now speaking of the American voice, which has a chromatic scale no other voice possesses, and so many irritating qualities that, were a nerve removed from the healthiest body and subjected to the pricking of its many stridencies, we are sure it would wriggle at once with an activity that could not be interpreted as anything except a mild protest.

"Surely, the American voice as it falls upon our ears must make so tight a clutch on our nerves that the combined effect of all other noises dwindles into comparative insignificance.

"Just why in our few moments of relaxation it has never occurred to us that our nervousness might be traced to its undoubtedly disturbing elements is a problem whose solution would require deeper cogitation than the present writer is capable of. But the glaring fact remains that we have made light of a matter fraught with importance, and in marshaling our full strength against the defects in our civicism have missed out just where our severest condemnation was necessary."

PUTS HIS QUEUE IN CASKET

Ling Sung of Omaha Obeys Imperial Decree but Carefully Preserves His Precious Pigtail.

After forty years of the closest companionship Ling Sung has parted with his queue in obedience to the imperial decree of the Emperor of China.

The queue, which is tied at one end with yellow ribbon, reposes in a silk lined casket under his cot and will be his companion to the grave when he is called to join his ancestors. Mr. Sung is one of the few Chinamen of Omaha who have clung to the Chinese custom of centuries and continued to keep the adornment carefully protected from the dismantling customs of the modern west.

Immediately after the formality of snipping off his queue Mr. Sung was barbered by one of his countrymen, and on Monday he gave an ante-queue chop chop suey dinner to a few of his friends. There will be another chop suey dinner to celebrate the event. When asked if the emperor's decree caused him to cut off his queue Mr. Sung said:

"No, my friend. Him barber, use just shears, same's anybody. Me save him in box to look at when not feel velly good."—Omaha World-Herald.

American Influence in Canada.

During the last 10 years over one and a half million immigrants have entered Canada. Of these 600,000 have come from Great Britain and as many from the United States. During this fiscal year 300,000 immigrants will enter the Dominion. Of these 160,000 will come from the neighboring country and 140,000 will enter by ocean ports.

The western settlers in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta are of the classes which interest themselves in local, state and national government. When they get their patents and become naturalized they will have almost a decisive influence in many constituencies. They have no natural affection for Great Britain. Probably they have been educated in contempt of kings and monarchical institutions. There are places in Saskatchewan where there is a hearty celebration of Independence Day by the American settlers and a dull, routine and uninteresting observance of Dominion Day by Canadians.

Ancient Suffragettes.

The suffragette is not new in England. As far back as 1641 "several gentlewomen and tradesmen's wives from the city" wanted to present a "no popery" petition. The commander of the guard, in obedience to the commons' command, "spoke them fair" and advised them to go home. They replied that they would return next day, and that "where there was one there would be 500." They proved as good as their word. Pym, the leader of the house in those days, did not prove so unyielding as Mr. Asquith, for it is related that he came to the door, thanked the women for the petition, and promised that it would have attention.

Seek Their Old Land.

A deputation of the principal Maori chiefs of New Zealand has interviewed the premier and asked for the return of certain reserves near Patea, or for compensation. The natives are particularly anxious to get the reserves back, as they are closely connected with ancient tradition and myth, and are almost sacred ground, as at Patea was made the first permanent home of the immigrants who came to the Dominion from Hawaiki in the canoe Aotea, under the chief Turi.

Sentenced to Idleness.

Walker—Cordie.

Beautiful in its elegance and simplicity was the marriage ceremony of Miss Frances Fisher Cordie and Mr. George A. Walker, conducted Wednesday evening, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Cordie, No. 3. Graff street. At 9:30 o'clock, the nuptial vows were made in the the presence of one hundred and twenty-five relatives and friends, the Rev. B. F. Williams, of Emlenton, a former pastor of the family performing the ceremony, assisted by the Rev. E. B. Welsh, pastor of the Oil City First Presbyterian church.

The bridal party decended the simlax festooned staircase to the strains of the nuptial airs from Lohengrin, played by Fessenden's orchestra, forming in the reception hall, the bride and groom standing underneath a large bell of simlax and pink roses. Throughout the colors were pink and white, roses supplying those colors, with masses of simlax interspersing. Previous to the the ceremony Miss Grace A. Walker, of Emporium, a sister of the groom, beautifully sang "Because," by Edward Teschmacher.

The bride, a charming girl, was a lovely vision in white Marquesette over Mesaline, her tulle veil being fastened with the orange blossoms worn by her mother when she, too, promised to love, honor and obey. Her bouquet was a shower of lillies of the valley and bride roses, and as an ornament she wore a diamond bracelet gift from the groom. Miss Alice M. Cordie, a sister of the bride was her only attendant, as bridesmaid, wearing an exquisite gown of pink crepe over messaline and carrying pink roses, little "Susie" McDonald acting as flower girl. The groom was attended by Mr. W. Clyde Sykes of Buffalo.

Covers was laid for twenty at the bride's table, the centre piece of which comprised a bank of simlax and pink roses. Favors to the girls were small pink slippers and to the men small trunks.

Mr. and Mrs. Walker left during the night for an eastern wedding trip and at its conclusion will be "at home" in Emporium, where the groom has mining interests. He is the son of the late Hon. Geo. A. Walker, one of the pioneer men of Emporium and for years president of its principal bank. The bride is accomplished and a favorite in the younger society set. Gifts to the bride were numerous and beautiful. The out of town guests were Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Sykes, daughter Ruth and son Clyde, Buffalo; J. M. Walker, Scranton; Miss Grace A. Walker, C. H. Cordie, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Seger, Emporium; Mr. and Mrs. Will S. Walker, Austin; Geo. W. Sykes, Galeton; Mrs Charles Schoolmaster, Mr. and Mrs Fred Roshey, Mrs. Arthur Bishop, Emlenton; Mrs. W. A. Caven, Pittsburgh; Miss Klipstein, Bakersfield, Cal. —Oil City Derrick.

ATTEST:—

C. JAY GOODNOUGH, Secretary.

Unwelcome News.

Word has been received at this place that the Rev. J. F. Anderson, who has been pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church at this place, the past three years, has been appointed to fill the charge at Milton, Pa. Rev. Anderson and his estimable family have many friends here who very deeply regret that the change has been made. He leaves Emporium with the best wishes of not only his own congregation, but from the town's people in general. We can highly recommend this family to the people of Milton and what has been Emporium's loss is Milton's gain.

PARIS CLOCKS TURNED BACK

French Legal Time Is at Last Made to Conform to That of Eastern Europe.

French legal time is at last to be brought into conformity with the international time of Eastern Europe, and is to correspond exactly to that of London. For this purpose the Paris clock will have to be put back nine minutes, the difference between Greenwich and Paris. When, by an international understanding, time zones with one hour's difference were adopted for Eastern, Central and Western Europe, with the meridian of Greenwich as the starting point, France held aloof. It would have come, of course, under the Eastern division, but it objected to adopting the meridian of Greenwich for that of Paris. The difference was only nine minutes, which was another reason for not making the change, as it seemed a small matter. But in 1898 the chamber voted the adoption of the hour in the international convention. The ministers at the time disagreed on the subject, and the senate left the matter in abeyance. A few weeks ago the minister of public works wrote to the commission of the senate, of which M. de Freycinet is chairman, and informed him that the ministers were now agreed. The commission at once met, and a favorable report was drawn up, and has now been submitted to the senate. The exact difference between London and Paris is 9 minutes 21 seconds, and the change will be made as soon as the senate has approved it by a vote.

HOW CAT WON LASTING FAME

Kiddo, Feline Mascot of the Airship America, Is Celebrated by Walter Wellman in His Story.

From the notoriety viewpoint "Kiddo," the cat mascot of the airship America during the recent sensational 1,000-mile voyage over the Atlantic has eclipsed the human portion of that dauntless crew. In writing the history of that voyage in Hampton's Magazine Walter Wellman has this to say about how the cat happened to be put aboard and how it nearly lost all of its fame:

"Just then attention was directed to that member of our crew destined to be the real hero of the voyage—because real heroes are never self-conscious—are always conscious of suspicion and slander, of danger, of overgenerous praise—and therefore are never two-legged. The young gray cat, taken on board half in jest as a mascot, was howling pitifully amidst these strange surroundings. Chief Engineer Vaniman, afraid of having his short sleeps disturbed, insisted that "Kiddo" be left behind. Navigator Simon, sailorlike, vowed it was bad luck to let a cat leave a ship, and insisted kitty should stay. Without any fear of midnight howls on the one hand, and without any superstitions on the other, I told Mr. Vaniman to do as he liked about it. He put puss in a bag and tried to lower him down to the motor launch, but the launch had cut loose and "Kiddo" was pulled up again, a narrow escape from losing all his fame."

Making American Styles.

Although the term "American styles" is heard much more frequently each season, there are few who know that it emanates legitimately from an organization of American tailors, who devote their time to designing and producing American styles, just as the French tailors and the tailors of Vienna originate new fashions each year. Those who think enough of the subject to investigate learn that Madame la Mode Parisienne, who for so many years held undisputed sway over the civilized countries on both sides of the Atlantic, has lost much of her authority. The well-dressed English woman, who formerly bought all of her clothes in Paris, is now dividing her attention between Paris and Vienna. The American woman is beginning to patronize the American tailor. —Leslie's.

Illustrated Rhymes.

Quite a stunt for an impromptu party of young people recently was a contest which consisted in illustrating Mother Goose rhymes. They seemed to enjoy the fun mightily and it certainly took little time or trouble to get it up.

Verses from the celebrated rhymes were written on large pieces of cardboard and they were passed with pencils.

Each boy or girl drew a picture to illustrate the rhyme he or she held and the prizes were announced as being in waiting for the best.

Twenty minutes were allowed for thinking up the picture and drawing it. The first prize was a nicely illustrated book and the second a plaster of paris goose filled with bonbons.

Maxim Predicts Aerial War.

That the young men who are now experimenting in aeronautics are the ones who will save the country in the next great war is the declaration of Hudson Maxim.

"We are practically defenseless and the arrival of an aerial fleet will prove our salvation," he says. "Every hilltop in this country should be crowned with an aerial battery and a landing platform, and on every mountain peak there should be an aeroplane stationed, ready for flight, for there can be no doubt about it, the outcome of the next great war will depend upon the superiority of air crafts."

Eliminate Capital Punishment.

The antique custom of capital punishment is a blot on the present judicial courts of civilized nations, inherited from ancient laws, for the administration of justice. With the present dilatory legal method of inflicting punishment to murderers, accompanied by the unwillingness of an ordinary human being to extinguish the life of another human being, at times justice is made impossible rather than accomplished by these crude methods, a relic of past ages and not intended for the present day of civilization. Often capital punishment seems nothing short of lawful judicial murder as it often becomes when the lives of innocent people are sacrificed through the miscarriage of jusice. A western legislature has recently proposed a law to abolish capital punishment in their state, inserting life imprisonment instead of death for capital misdemeanors, which will advance the progress of civilization to an unexampled degree. Life imprisonment not only punishes the criminal to the full extent and protects the public, but affords a possible chance of reformation and provides for the possible danger of a misplacing of justice. Through the passage of this bill and its influence in neighboring states will prove a great aid to the gradual abolishment of this hideous death penalty.

Lewis Leutze Injured.

Lewis Leutze, of this place, met with a most painful accident at the saw mill of C. B Howard Company, on Wednesday, right after the noon hour, which resulted in a broken right arm and receiving severe body bruises. Mr. Leutze was engaged in putting on a belt, when his sleeve caught in the pully and he was whirled around the shaft several times. Most of the clothing was torn from his body. Dr. H. S. Falk was hastily summoned and dressed the injuries. Later he was removed to the home of his uncle, Mr. Bennett Leutze, on Second street, where he is being cared for. It certainly was a miraculous escape and Lewis can indeed consider himself lucky. While his injuries are very painful he is resting as well as can be expected after such an experience. His many friends hope that he will soon be around again.
